Foreword

FIFTY years ago, there appeared upon this campus a small pamphlet—the INDEX—published by the “Pioneer Class” of 1871, then in their Junior year, and “designed to represent the internal growth and status of the college.” From that small beginning, made with foresight and care, the INDEX has grown, until in these times of reconstruction after the Great World War and at the start of the second half century of “Aggie Life,” while honored customs are being judged and if found wanting cast away, the INDEX stands, well worthy of the place it holds. The class of 1921 now does its part—presents to all this volume of the INDEX and passes on our oldest custom to the classes yet to come, charging them to cherish and perpetuate it for all time.

MEMORIAL BUILDING

Our Alumni

JUST as our alumni look back on their Alma Mater with pride and loyalty, so we, the undergraduates, hold them in high esteem and regard, as the men who have so largely made our college what it is today. From a mere handful of men, fifty years ago, who had the desire for better agriculture in their hearts, the number of students in M. A. C. has increased steadily to over five hundred. From open field and marshy meadow our campus has been skilfully planned and improved until at the present time it holds a pre-eminent position among the most beautiful college campuses of America. However, the most important feature in the growth of M. A. C. is the men who have been developed and sent out to teach and demonstrate to the people of this state, the country, and even of foreign lands the basis of all well-being and prosperity—the methods of better agriculture.

“Aggie’s” purpose has been, and always will be, to produce agricultural leaders. For that purpose, the college was established in eighteen hundred and sixty-seven; toward that aim, the faculty have bent all of their efforts; to fulfill that end, the students have spent four valuable years of their lives at M. A. C. in preparation. The pick of America’s manhood enters the colleges, and most of her leaders in politics, industry, and science are college trained men. In the present crisis, as never before, our nation depends upon the colleges to produce her leaders. Here, in the need of our country for agricultural leaders, has been “Aggie’s” greatest contribution. Recognition of the work done by our alumni, as representatives of the college, is due from all.

The interests of “Aggie” are those of her alumni. Her welfare is that of her alumni. The growth and power of the college widen the scope of influence and work for her graduates. On the other hand, each progressive movement taken by her representatives is an advance for Alma Mater, and a step in the attainment of her purpose. The alumni of M. A. C. realize that indestructible relationship, and strive to strengthen the bond. East and west, north and south, where “Aggie men are gathered,” co-operation with the college is strongly manifested. Our latest successful project, the Memorial Building, a tribute to our forty-nine honored dead, called forth an unsurpassed concert of action from our alumni. M. A. C. clubs abound all over the country, and the sphere of “Aggie’s” influence has proven to be world-wide.

What does the future hold for M. A. C.? Every alumnus and undergraduate looks forward to a growth in her equipment, such as new buildings and campus adornments, to progress in athletic and non-athletic activities, and, the most important of all, to a closer co-operation between the alumni and their Alma Mater, and a still stronger entwining of interests and ideals. To express appreciation of what our alumni have done for Alma Mater and humanity, and to strengthen the ties of interest and love, and to promote in the future even greater progress than that of the past, we, the fifty-first class, dedicate our INDEX to the alumni of M. A. C.

Historical Sketch of the Massachusetts Agricultural College

The agricultural colleges of the various states were created, as is generally known, by an Act of Congress, approved by President Lincoln July 2, 1862, "donating public lands to the several States and Territories which may provide Colleges for the benefit of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts." The act provided, moreover, that the interest of the fund realized from the sale of the land scrip should be faithfully applied "to the endowment, support, and maintenance of at least one college where the leading object shall be, without excluding other scientific and classical studies, and including military tactics, to teach such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts, in such manner as the legislatures of the States may respectively prescribe, in order to promote the liberal and practical education of the industrial classes in the several pursuits and professions of life." Justin S. Morrill, successively representative and senator from Vermont, was the author of this beneficent act, and to his wisdom and foresight, unswerving perseverance and lofty patriotism, the land-grant colleges owe their birth.

In accordance with the foregoing enactment of Congress, an act accepting this grant was passed by the Massachusetts Legislature, and approved by Governor Andrew April 18, 1863. It was further provided that the college should receive two-thirds of the annual income of the fund created under the act of Congress, and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology one-third for the advancement of the mechanic arts. The government of the college was vested in a body corporate by the name of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, consisting of fourteen members or trustees, appointed by the governor and council for a term of seven years, exclusive of the governor of the Commonwealth, the secretary of the board of education, the secretary of the board of agriculture, and the president of the faculty, who were ex officio members of the corporation. By a subsequent act the State Board of Agriculture was constituted a board of overseers. The Massachusetts college was the first of the land-grant colleges to be established in New England, and the only institution of its kind in the United States designed purely for education in the art and science of husbandry. "The Massachusetts Agricultural College," says President Butterfield in a recent report, "stands unique among the sisterhood of public institutions of higher learning established by the Morrill Act of 1862, in that it is not connected with a State university and that it deals with agriculture alone. It is the only institution of collegiate grade in America which may be called strictly an agricultural college and nothing else."

It was the express wish of President Hitchcock, one of the godfathers of the institution and a leading authority on agricultural education in America, that Amherst should be selected as the seat of the college, because of its peculiar fitness and adaptation, furnishing as it does the requisite variety of fertile soil and being a rare field for geological studies. Amherst College also generously offered the use of her library, cabinets of natural history, chapel and lecture-rooms, and even the services of her professors for ten years. Colonel Clark's agency in the location of the college in Amherst was still more immediate and effective. Indeed to his influence as a member of the Legislature, his exertions in raising the money on which the location was conditioned, and his wisdom and energy as president, was largely due its early prosperity and success. The charter required that the sum of seventy-five thousand dollars be raised by subscription or otherwise for the erection of suitable buildings. The people of Amherst, with foresight and public spirit, first by individual subscription, but finally by a town tax, raised fifty thousand dollars. The trustees of Amherst College, as individuals, led by their president, and aided by one of two other friends of the institution, became responsible for twenty-five thousand dollars more.

In 1864 the trustees purchased the present farm, and the same year Henry F. French was elected president. He devised plans for the site of the college, its organization and government. He outlined the general course of study—the principal features being those recommended by President Hitchcock in his classic report of 1851—which with few changes was adopted and followed for many years. It was also his intention to provide short and elective courses for those seeking only a practical education in agriculture. Under his direction the surveys of the property were made, the grounds improved, trees set out and nurseries started. President Chadbourne, his successor, systematized the courses of instruction, selected the sites for the first three buildings and contracted for their erection.

But William S. Clark was practically the first president, for Judge French did little more than take the initiatory steps, important though they were, and Dr. Chadbourne had hardly entered into office when the state of his health compelled his resignation. It was left, therefore, for President Clark to organize and establish the new college. How well he succeeded in this may be judged from the fact that, with slight variations, its policy remained unchanged for a quarter of a century, and has been the model copied by sister institutions both in this country and Japan. On the second of October, 1867, the college opened its doors for the admission of students, and thirty-three matriculated; but before the close of the first term the number had grown to forty-seven. In 1871 the first class, consisting of twenty-eight members, was graduated. For a time under President Clark's vigorous administration the college grew rapidly, the men he gathered about him—Stockbridge, Snell, Goodell, Miller, Goessmann, Alvord, Peabody, Parker and H. J. Clark—adding greatly to its reputation. Unfortunately, "the foundation on which he built was not broad enough for the edifice with which he would fain have crowned it." In 1875 an arrangement was made with the authorities of Boston University whereby regular students of the college, if they so desired, might become members of the university and upon graduation receive its diploma in addition to that of the college. Three years later the so-called congressional scholarships, or one free scholarship for each of the congressional districts of the State, limited to candidates resident in the district, were established by the trustees.

The two administrations following President Clark's resignation in 1879 were distinguished for their storm and stress. For a while, owing to the parsimony of the State, the general apathy of the public, including the farmers, and the hostility of the press, the fate of the college as an independent institution hung in the balance. It was a time of embarrassment and depression, and few there were who believed the college would see better days. Yet it struggled on, private benefactions, as usual, supplying the want of State aid. In 1882 an act was passed establishing the Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station, though scientific investigations had been conducted at the college since 1870, and Dr. Charles A. Goessmann was appointed director. The following year eighty free scholarships, open by appointment to persons in the Commonwealth, were created for four years. Three years later these were made perpetual. The turning point had been reached, conditions had improved and the friends of the college again took courage. During President Greenough's term of office the attendance gradually increased, the resources of the institution were materially augmented and several important buildings, including the stone chapel, new south dormitory and experiment station, were erected.

Under Henry Hill Goodell the expectation of a prosperous and happy administration was more than fulfilled. His first aim was to place the college on a broader and surer foundation. It was emphatically the period of State and National grants. During his presidency, the resources were trebled, the courses of study strengthened and broadened, and in 1893 the rigid curriculum began to give way to the more liberal elective system. At the same time the standard of scholarship was raised and the examinations became more searching. Graduate courses for advanced work were now offered, leading to the degrees of Master of Science and Doctor of Philosophy. The teaching force was increased to meet the increased demand, and the number of students was doubled. Largely through his efforts and influence the Hatch and second Morrill Acts were passed. In 1895, in the interests of administrative economy and greater efficiency, the Massachusetts and the Hatch Experiment Stations were consolidated and made a department of the college. In 1896 the college first opened its doors to women. Three years later the tuition was made free to citizens of the United States, a policy abandoned in 1912, except for residents of Massachusetts. The administration of President Goodell covered a fairly well-defined period in the history of the college, a period of steady growth and especially of preparation for a new era, which while maintaining and strengthening the old ideals and high standards of the college, has led under his successor to larger and in some directions new fields of activity and usefulness. He will be remembered not only as a wise and able executive, but as a thorough teacher and the creator of the library which bears his name.

The administration of Dr. Butterfield, who accepted the presidency in 1906, has been marked by a policy of extension and expansion. Under his leadership the scope of the college has been greatly broadened, the faculty reorganized, the college administration systematized, new departments have been created—offering a wide range of elective studies in the sciences and humanities—and new methods of teaching introduced. The college through its extension work has made itself felt not only in every part of the Commonwealth but far beyond its borders. In 1907 a normal department or summer school of agriculture was established by act of the Legislature, designed chiefly for the training of those desiring to teach elementary agriculture and nature study in the public schools, but providing also technical courses in agriculture, horticulture, and other branches, including agricultural economics and rural sociology. Weekly assemblies, rural conferences, itinerant lectures, educational trains, correspondence courses and Farmers' week, have become important features of the college. The present administration, moreover, has been notable for the rapid growth of the financial resources of the college—such as those derived from the Adams, Nelson, and Smith-Lever funds, to mention no others—for the number of new, well-equipped buildings which adorn the campus, for the large increase of the teaching force and the number engaged in scientific research and, not least, for the increase in attendance which, if those pursuing the short courses be included, has multiplied some fivefold. This result is the more significant when it is remembered that the standard of admission has been raised so that the college shall conform, for the first time in its history, strictly to a college and university basis of admission.

A sketch of the college cannot be truly and faithfully written without some mention of Marshall P. Wilder, one of the wisest and most honored of the trustees, whose voice was among the first to be lifted up in favor of institutions where scientific and practical agriculture should be taught. He was identified with its interests from its very birth. In the act of incorporation his name stands first, and from that time to the day of his death, twenty-five years later, he never ceased his active connection with the college. Among other devoted friends and benefactors of the institution in the earlier days—most of them original trustees named in the charter—were Nathan Durfee, Charles G. Davis, Henry Colt, Charles L. Flint, Henry F. Hills, Daniel Needham, and William Knowlton.

The presidents of the college since its inception have been: Henry Flagg French, 1864-66; Paul Ansel Chadbourne, 1866-67, 1882-83; William Smith Clark, 1867-79; Charles Louis Flint, 1879-80; Levi Stockbridge, 1880-82; James Carruthers Greenough, 1883-86; Henry Hill Goodell, 1886-1905; and since 1906, Kenyon Leech Butterfield.

THE ALUMNI

Communication

Greetings! to the INDEX of 1921, time-honored reflection of student life at M. A. C., to the undergraduates over whose heads now hang the traditions of half a century demanding that "custom be honored with custom," and to the long procession of Alumni following in our wake and ever reminding the head of the column to "step lively" and "move up forward" to make room for another group of Aggie men; seventy-one, still a vigorous and lively organization, salutes you all.

No succeeding class has felt, probably, such a weight of responsibility as was ours in those early days. We were Pioneers and must lay out the way well for all that should follow. We look back with pride on the days when we inaugurated so many of the college features of today, new songs set to old tunes, the glee club, the debating society, the secret societies, student rebellions, etc. We kept things lively for "Prexy" Clark, and Profs. Stockbridge, Goodell and Goessmann.

As we look back to the small beginning of the first four years of M. A. C. and compare them with today's equipment and facilities, we feel that we had the satisfaction of intimate companionship with a few master minds and of a play of personality on personality that can hardly be offset by all the increased complexity of organization today.

From some sixty men enrolled during the first year, was graduated a class of twenty-eight men. From a college then hardly known, those twenty-eight men went out and have for nearly half a century played their part as men of whom the college need not be ashamed. In 1917, the semi-centennial of the opening of the college, eighteen men of '71 gathered in reunion, and today fourteen of us are looking forward to 1921 when we hope to help in the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the first Graduation.

When '71 entered college, an Agricultural College was an experiment. The class was experimented upon in many ways and it could hardly have been expected that all the class first graduated would become farmers. As a matter of record, however, more of the class have been successfully engaged in some branch of agriculture than in any other.

None of the class, so far as known, has made a failure in life, and of those now living, the record of '71 in the recent Memorial Fund drive tells a story of which we are proud. Long live the M. A. C.

Success to the INDEX.

Senior Class History

THE CLASS of 1920, in all the colleges of the country, will be the first class to graduate from college with as much as a full year's training within college walls since the war began. This class is the class which has been the subject of many prophesies by men wise in the affairs of the world and learned in the interpretation of events from the standpoint of progress in civilization. These men have seen that this class of men, that started just before the war, and has waded through the war experience, has had more than a mere training in books and in technique. They have seen this class thoroughly immersed in college customs and ideals by a year of freshman activity, scuttled into service or into war work connected with the college exercises, and then settled for a year and a half in the drills of the curricula, just enough to steady the war-awakened energies.

The present senior class of Aggie entered in the fall of 1916 with one hundred and sixty-seven members. It was not an unusual freshman class for its size—it was smaller by fifty men than the preceding class—but it held itself with more than usual cohesion to the tasks imposed upon it by tradition and by the sophomores of that year. The football game with 1919 was lost by a slight margin of six to three. The six-man rope pull was won by twenty-eight feet. The sophomores could not pull the class through the pond, nor did the next freshman class pull 1920 through the pond—the story of that event runs hard for 1921. In other class contests, 1920 maintained a strong standard of class spirit.

CLASS OF 1920

The declaration of war in April, 1917, shocked this college as it shocked all other colleges. Everything stopped. The morale of classes was loose. Athletic practice was shabby and the baseball schedule was cancelled. College closed and the students hastened to positions of value to the country, some in military service, some in chemical, agricultural, and other work that would materially help to win the war. 1920 sent her men into this service. Three never will return to their alma mater. Many have returned to college and have enrolled with succeeding classes. Many men from the earlier classes of 1918 and 1919 have returned to fill the places of those who dropped back from 1920.

The fall of 1919 opened with a senior enrollment of one hundred and seventeen. This class undertook the task of remodeling the shattered frame-work of the student activity. What they have accomplished by their efforts, time alone will show. It is to the future that these men are looking. For the future of their college, they are working—for the future of the college as it will be reflected in their individual successes. To fulfill the prophecy that the class of 1920 "will be the class that does things" is the task unfolding itself before the present seniors.

In Memoriam

Allan Leon Pond

August 28, 1896-February 26, 1920

M. A. C. lost one of the finest characters in its undergraduate body by the death of Allan L. Pond on February 26, 1920. His wonderful personality and good-fellowship, combined with an active participation in student activities made him one of the most popular men in college.

Allan L. Pond entered M. A. C. with the class of 1919 and at once made a name for himself in athletics, playing on his class football, basketball, and baseball teams. He made all three varsity teams during his sophomore year and was elected president of his class. He enlisted in the 14th Railway Engineers during the summer of 1917 and saw sixteen months active service in France, where he was gassed and later contracted a severe case of rheumatism. He returned to college in the spring of 1919, entering the Junior class. He was soon seen on the baseball diamond again, and was also elected to Adelpia and the Senate. During his senior year he was captain of the football team and captain-elect of baseball. He was a member of the Kappa Sigma fraternity and had been elected class captain just before his death.

Possessed of the qualities of strength, valor, and leadership, yet modest and unassuming among his fellows, and because of his big heart and broad smile he was loved and admired by all. The inspiring example of cheerfulness, of an always open, wholesome life, and of staunch integrity which he gave to the college will be a lasting tribute to his memory.

Junior Class History

IN THE YEAR A. D. one thousand nineteen hundred and seventeen, we, the class of 1921, the fifty-first class to enter this college, made our first appearance on the campus. We have had the experiences which have been the common property, and have done the things which have been the common privilege of all the classes at M. A. C. As freshmen we were hauled through the pond by 1920, as sophomores we hauled 1922 through the pond. As freshmen we were deprived of a banquet season on account of the war, but as sophomores we put forth a mighty effort and waged a good fight against the freshmen in the mild form of banquet season which was permitted. In various interclass athletic contests we have won more than our share of victories. In contributions of men for varsity, athletic and non-athletic activities we have not been found wanting, either in numbers or in quality. These are matters of interest. But we have been fundamentally concerned with things which have vitally affected the history of the class and of the college.

As there was a period in the history of the world appropriately called the "dark ages" so there has been a period in our history which was dark and foreboding. During the war every able student in the class was in the military service of his country, and there were none left in the class but a half-dozen co-eds and a handful of army rejects. But as in the history of the world there was a renaissance, so there was a rebirth of the class with the ending of the war. A fairly large percentage of the original class and a large number from other classes who were away during the war period are with us now.

It has been the aim of every class at M. A. C. to do something of permanent value for the college. The class of 1921 has taken upon itself the task of introducing an "honor system" into the college, the task of making this college a place where honesty is the supreme power involved in the dealings of the students with each other, with the faculty, and with themselves. At the present time the honor system here is in an experimental stage. But it is significant that the initiative has been taken and that a start has been made: and moreover, that in spite of adverse conditions an improvement over the old way has been achieved. It is only a question of time before Aggie men will all wake up, get behind this thing whole-heartedly, and demonstrate conclusively their caliber. May the class of 1921 continue its leadership in the good work until M. A. C. students all work together under an efficient honor system.

"JIMMIE"

Reading

KΣ House

Reading High School

1899; General Agriculture; KΣ; Varsity Rifle Team (2); Class Rifle Team (1); Class Basketball (1, 2); Vice-President (1); President (2); Class Track (1, 2); Junior Prom Committee (3); Class Baseball (1, 2); Honor System Committee (1, 2).

"On with the fight," said the Ancient Mariner as he gazed upon the fair form of Horatio at the bridge. The fight is on, say we, with "Jimmie" in the thick of the fray, now fling aside with ease the fatal shots from "Billy's" fortress, now blocking a counter-thrust from "The Squirt of England," frequently dodging uppercuts from "Lefty" and very elusively evading the tentacles of "Pat the Great," and as a fitting climax to his glory, rejecting a one-way ticket for Reading. However, everyone sooner or later meets his Waterloo. Therefore, suffice it to say in behalf of "Jimmie," missing in action at Hatfield."

Harold Kenneth Allen

"H. K."

Belchertown

Belchertown

Amherst High School

1896; General Agriculture.

This is the genius who has cheated the Boston and Maine out of several train fares by purchasing two or three speed chariots for transportation purposes. When running O. K. they also get him to first hour classes on time. To show how much "Al" appreciates his education, it is well to mention that he spends his summer vacations on the perpendicular side hills of his home town tickling the ground with a hoe while coaxing backward "spuds" to maturity. Besides being a master agrarian he is designed to become a Napoleon of finance and has already begun to commercialize himself in buying and selling cars. We feel sure of his success for he has inherited those puritanical strangle-hold qualities, which even Caesar himself lacked.

"BUN"

Arlington

ΦΣΚ House

Arlington High School

1898; Agricultural Economics; ΦΣΚ; Class Track (2); Class Hockey (2); Class Rifle Team (1); Varsity Track (2); Varsity Hockey (2); Honor System Committee (3).

Did you say "hot bun"? Well, not exactly, but a trifle warm on certain subjects. He hails from the noted "Celery City" and upon his arrival in Amherst he was a wee bit bashful, but now he has blossomed out wonderfully and has almost attained the rating of a full-sized celery flower around which the butterflies flutter, flutter and linger. However, no fine arts for "Bun," so he gives the cue, passes the puck, and the real game is on.

"ANDY"

Medford

OX House

Medford High School

1897; Agricultural Economics; OX; Class Football (1); Manager Class Basketball (1); Class Baseball (1, 2); Class Hockey (1, 2); Interfraternity Conference (3).

On with this "rough, tough, and ready" hero of the diamond and of the hockey rink. He seems to have many of those goods which pull down the prizes, but watch your step, he is highly explosive. Has anybody here seen "Sammie"? Well, you've glimpsed "Andy" too, for they are pals in peace and war. On account of his burning desire to follow in the footsteps of "Thursty," "Andy" is eating up the library in preparation for a scrapping, sizzling "Aggie Ec" career. Next!

Philip Brownell Armstrong

"PHIL"

Rutherford, N. J.

ΨΣΚ House

Rutherford High School

1898; Microbiology; ΨΣΚ; Class Basketball (2); Class Track (2); Chemistry Club.

Early in his scientific struggle this man bought a Handbook of Chemistry and Physics and ever since he has been wondering if he would have to elect Physics so in order to get his money's worth from said volume. In physique "Phil" is built long and slim like the insects of his native state, and like them never stays very long in the same place, especially when engaged in his favorite sport. His trend toward the classics(?) indicates that he intends to complete his biological and chemical knowledge by three or four years of study abroad, after which he will be able to revel in the field of research.

William Bailey

"BILL"

Williamstown

North College

Drury High School

1896; General Agriculture; Commons Club.

Here we have the 20th Century Socrates. Applied philosophies characterize this eccentric youth from Williamstown. In fact, his philosophical nature enables him to deal with such problems as studies, especially physics, the price of a good feed, and the fair sex, with apparent ease. The growth of "Bill's" popularity is self-evident as he has held the honor of being the "Blossom of the Amen Corner" in physics for an indefinite time. He decided to surrender his title this year. "Bill's" chief problem since his arrival at M. A. C. has been to decide to what class he really wished to belong, but everything leads us to believe that he is now satisfied. We believe that this prospective young rancher would fit well in a New York winter garden, as his talent as a comedian in conjunction with individual resourcefulness would assure him overwhelming success.

Louis Eliot Baker

"LOUIE"

Salem

South College

Salem High School

1898; Agricultural Economics; Class Basketball (2).

What about this cute fella? Although he has not been pinched for disobeying the child labor laws and wearing those five pound tortoise shells on his nasal apparatus, we must guard him closely, or someone will steal him. Where that mile-a-minute no-stop clip of his ends is a deep mystery but he must be bent on some prodigious errand for the "Big Three." Auf wiedersehen, Louie.

Russell Dexter Baker

"BAKE"

Oxford, Maine

17 Fearing Street

Marshfield High School

1900; Animal Husbandry; Glee Club (2, 3).

To attempt to do this man justice with mere unadorned language would be almost sacrilegious. "Bake" is such a national character that it would be entirely fitting and proper to write an epic in his honor. He has wonderful ambitions, this boy Baker, much greater than Caesar's, such as owning and running a real live poultry plant where the hens ain't all roosters and where he can mingle the silver tones of his melodious voice with those of the feathered flock.

Carl Høller Bogholt

"CARL"

Newport, R. I.

Q. T. V. House

Rogers High School

1896; Rural Sociology; Q. T. V.

A human enigma is Bogholt. Never willing to talk about himself, he seems difficult of approach, yet at the same time cordial, with a way of being disinterested and enthusiastic at the same time. An ex-'19 man, Carl showed good judgment in transferring to us from Rhode Island State, and then established a reputation for perseverance by coming back after a two years' absence to finish with '21. He has elected Rural Sociology as a major, and when five years out of college we would not be surprised to find "Bug" preaching the gospel of social service in the suburbs of Newport. Of late he has been receiving numerous letters in pink envelopes, which may account for his neglect of Amherst society.

Raymond Woods Boynton

"Pep"

Framingham

Worcester Academy

ΑΣΦ House

1895; Chemistry; ΑΣΦ.

"Pep," the super-junior! Coming from that petite ville of Framingham, noted for its embryo schoolmarms and other things, he has made a distinct place for himself in '21. Among his qualifications is the fact that he is one of "Billy's preferred." "Pep's" choice of '21 was not all his own. A bit of foreign travel including a stay in that wonder city of Paris, saved him for us from out the clutches of '19. And he made the cutest little "Louie"! But, alas, "the old Sam Browne, she ain't what she used to be," and no longer do the chic mademoiselles rest their adoring gaze upon his manly form.

Yes, sir, we have a John D. with us. "Briggie" is one of our mighty men and has been a predominant factor in keeping order in the Freshman ranks. He is out to eclipse the record of "Smoky" Joe Wood in the great American game and has already a good start. His disposition is one of the best to be found in town and he is the possessor of one of those smiles you can't resist. Although he is several yards short of having an extensive line, our big man can hold his own even across the river.

The quiet country people of Fiskdale were startled by the appearance of Paul Wilfred in their midst on August 20th, 1898. He chattered about the vicinity of his birth-place for several years, meanwhile improving the knowledge under his skull at the Hitchcock Free Academy. Finding it insufficient he decided to give M. A. C. a try. During the college year his attentions are divided between studying live stock and stenogs and securing an intimate knowledge of sports from the newspapers. Summers he does about the same thing, with the exception of a change from stenogs to home talent. As has been hinted, cow husbandry is his chosen calling; and to be logical, Bull Durham will probably continue as his favorite smoke.

"Bunk" has the square jaw of a Dempsey or a second Kid McCoy, but he's absolutely gentle everywhere but on the football field, where he uses his 165 pounds to advantage. Some of the cartoons in this volume testify to his ability as an artist, and in vaudeville he is some jazz-baby when dolled up as a colored hell boy. "Bunk" has been known to smoke occasionally, which is his only fault. In short he is a worker, and a friend worth having. Carrol ought eventually to make a big crash in some agricultural enterprise, if he goes after the farming game the way he tackles Aggie activities.

Down from the wilds of Dartmouth, "Cal" came, a chubby little child, to receive a regular degree at "Aggie." About the first that we heard of him was the plinkety plink of his banjo. Since then, music and he have been twins. Although "Cal" has real ambitions toward becoming an honest-to-goodness athlete, his successes until now have been scored mostly as a Spanish athlete "over the river." Peaches and similar fruit have seemed to appeal to "Cal," and he has decided to take a try at learning the art of the pomologist.

In the next cage we come to "Wild Cat Pete," the aborigine from Willimantic. "Pete," in accordance with the other denizens of his clan, casts terror into the hearts of the faculty and physical educational department, especially by the frequent use of his patented nasal trumpet. One must admit that the boy has a far-away look, the analysis of which is left to greater minds than ours. Can it be that it is caused by the thought of being one of Billy's chosen, or is it possible that the troubadour blood still flows through his sturdy body

In his ardent desire to become an honest-to-goodness 100% farmer, "Red," on his first arrival in Amherst, struck out for the college farm house and hibernated there for the first year. Although you would not suspect that "Red" was one of Aggie's athletes by his looks, his six feet plus of being have counted considerably on the diamond for the varsity and on class teams. His work there is of the D. S. C. order. And, last but not least, "Davie's" record at Mrs. Smith's school stands alone. There sure is something to these cave-man methods. Comediennes in chem. labs. are rare but "Don" ought to make good in that capacity, for he has absorbed quite a fund of information from "Doc" Wellington, and can imitate Harry Lauder to perfection. He is a pillar of strength in the glee club and will probably remain there until they find out just what the trouble is with the outfit. "Davie" believes that variety is the spice of life and his activities range all the way from crocheting in Holyoke, to finding out how large the baskets in the Drill Hall Court are. He uses the weed in all forms, and moreover doesn't object to sharing his fags with friends who don't take life seriously enough to buy their own. Boisterous "Herm," the sun's only rival, has a peculiar manner of attending to his own business, and not wishing to be self-centered, he makes attempts at attending to others'. The accusation has also been laid at Herm's door that he can preach practices, but not practice preachings of the third commandment. However, this statement is only semi-official. "Don" is Scotch and proud of it. Perhaps this will account for his uncanny success in wheedling the festive dollar from the unsuspecting victim. His specialty is ads, and anyone who has tried it well knows that this business of getting ads for college publications is not the softest job in the world, rather, it is like a sentence to hard labor. The sad and serious situation is that "Fletch" is also a "spooch" maker and has threatened several times to capture some of the "Aggie" dramatical prizes. This conquering hero, direct from Arms Academy, has by this time lost much of the atmosphere and bearing of that stately institution, which characterized him his freshman year. From early infancy, it has been a great question whether the growth of his appetite would keep pace with that of his feet, but despite the size of the latter, now we venture to say that in both respects our friend is even, judging by the ease with which he can dispose of a pie or a loaf of cake. He is particularly noted for his scruples against dancing and general hilarity on the Sabbath, especially when he is not included in the peacebreakers. After cultivating an ability to talk much and say little he will make a fine Chautauqua lecturer.

We hope that the change was not too rapid, for it would be a perfect shame if plasmolysis occurred. We have been led to believe that one reason for "Archie's" transfer was the scarcity in quantity and quality of fowls in the vicinity of Cambridge, for he is specializing in poultry. The feathered flock of Amherst should feel highly complimented. "Archie's" one redeeming feature is his clear, genuine laugh that has often been heard to re-echo from one end of the campus to the other.

He also likes to remind us all that he took English 26 under "Pat" last spring by frequently humming snatches from Browning or Charles Lamb. He divides his time equally between the heavy end of the glee-club quartet and attending to the whimsical caprices of the female offenders at the biscuit foundry, where he displays surprising agility. And as he will study, we imagine that his future is well assured. But whether it will be as the omnipresent bass on a three-day circuit, as the obsequious waiter at the Wellesley Inn, or as a mere farmer we dare not predict. His father is sure to remain in the haberdasher business so long as he employs such a practical advertisement. Secondly, he obtains new jokes bi-annually, one of which is always sure to contain the phrase "We're not fighting." Thirdly, as manager of Jerry's Jazz Band, the less said the better. "Sketchemalsky" won undying fame in his fight for the position of assistant stamp licker on our local humorous weekly, and by persistent effort, he hopes to attain the pinnacle heights of chief artist for the new poultry plant now under construction.

"Dick," a former member of the class of '20, comes from the wilds of Stow, a town somewhere in Massachusetts. "Dick" did not return to school after receiving his commission in the Army, but preferred to wait for a new year so as to get the full benefit of his college course and be in a better class. "Dick" always was a steer at studies, being most efficient in math. Although coming from a small town where knowledge is supposed to be scarce, he is known to have made occasional visits to Wellesley clad in a borrowed dress suit. Pomology and apple eating are "Dick's" favorite studies, and he now intends to settle down among the hills of Stow where he can raise all the apples he can eat.

"Cohen" tried to be tough in early days among us by wearing his freshman hat at an unusual angle, and spitting through his teeth. He lost the first habit with the hat but retained the latter, along with a whiskey tenor voice, and some ability as a Yiddish comedian. He has a hard time to keep from "rolling his own" or packing up the old "Jimmy" with P. A. during the hockey season. "Cohen" is a rapid-fire thinker in Ec. Soc. and one of "Doc's" front row dependables. Meal times at the Colonial he looks pretty smooth in a white coat and entertains in addition to waiting on the patrons. He especially enjoys chapel exercises and hopes to be able to conduct some of his own some day.

Arthur came to Aggie just in time to see his old college, Tufts, beaten by our fighting eleven on the football field. Although a new arrival, he immediately settled down to business and now at almost any time he can be found in the library perusing volume after volume of "deep stuff." Those who know him wonder if he ever indulges in sleep. With his aim directed toward the teaching business, some day we expect to say, "Good morning, Prof." to him.

Old beyond his years, possessed of a look of a cabinet minister, shifty and quick on his feet, is this man of parts. Even the Canadian army couldn't stop "Don's" athletic ability. In all seasons, from football in the fall to baseball in the spring, his real home is in the Phys. Ed. office. No one has tried to picture "Don" as a Caruso even if he has the hair, and as for a modern Romeo—Juliet would need to be an all-American tackle.

After a three-year sojourn at Harvard "Linc" decided to turn over a new leaf. The call of the chickens turned his steps toward "Aggie" and fate decreed that he should have the opportunity of signing up with '21. During the daytime "Linc" may be discovered hovering around the poultry plant dopping out ways and means to make two eggs grow where one grew before. At night, however, the scene changes and he is one of Masonic Hall's rooters. In spite of his early misdemeanors "Linc" still has chances of prosperity before him.

Observe, a perfect paradox. In spite of his apparent scorn in regard to the women, this specimen has risen to dazzling heights as an impersonator of the fair sex, in his Roister Doister attempts. As an everyday citizen and tax collector at the college store "Lock" assumes a serious finality of attitude. Like all other good men, he is a firm supporter of banquet seraps, arena and pond parties and earnestly advocates frequent class smokers.

"Tubby" originated in Chicopee, but it wasn't his fault. "Mac" is a frail little thing with but 196 or so pounds resting in his stocking feet. He has an original method of keeping his physique in condition by indulging in the barbarous sport of tiddlywinks and ping-pong with an occasional scrimmage against the Tufts eleven thrown in for good measure. In the fall of 1917 "Mac" produced a great deal of commotion on the campus by nearly causing a repetition of the great flood in the vicinity of the pond, and at a later date thinking seriously of rivalling Bella Donna Von Berlin, he introduced a new vogue in millinery science.

"Sonny" has tried all the games where speed counts and still it is a question as to whether he can go faster on cleats or on skates, but why worry so long as he keeps the opposition busy at either game. The cows that "Sonny" raises when he puts his knowledge of Animal Husbandry into practice will have to step some to keep up.

Reserved, indeed almost shy, we don't know whether he believes that two is company and more a crowd, but he is silent among the latter, while there are sundry rumors about concerning his popularity with a select few of the other sex. "Phil" inclines toward Pom as a major, and his first attempts in that field will be, perhaps, the propagation of seedless cranberries.

Little is known of this fair-haired youth, other than that he has recently changed his abode from the top floor of the chem. lab. to spacious apartments in North, which he believes to be more compatible with his college associations. "Newt" is at ease when delving into the depth of numerous stupendous volumes in an effort to perfect his already vast store of knowledge, and periodically he startles "Doc" Sprague with an extended discourse on some great sociological problem. Apparently he has no place in his repertoire for such trivial matters as Physics 25, in consequence of which he received a second-hand engraved season ticket to the "amen corner." His interests are scholastic in the extreme, and he is apparently trying to absorb every bit of knowledge possible before packing the carpet bag for the homeward journey for the last time.

And we'll all agree that the combination of a speedster and his manly beauty is well nigh irresistible. "Joe's" favorite act is to comfortably ensconce a fair one within his mighty right, while the needle titters around 60, and tell her how he simply adores the moonlight. Oh, boy!

Harold was up in the air during the big scrap, but came back to earth with a bang last fall in football. About the only two men that "Larry" envies are the author of "Co-ordinate Geometry," and a man who can expound its principles like Prof. Moore. Once connected with the T. N. Well, yes, but there is also an idiom to the following effect: "The deeper they are, the harder they fall." As he declines to be interviewed along social activities, let his actions tell the tale which not even the familiar radiators of the Tower have yet been able to decipher. Commonly called Morris by his mother and sister, more commonly known as "Murry," but preferably called "Mo," he impresses us immediately by the piercing look from those black eyes which see more than he tells us about. He is a rabid student of organic chemistry, and is particularly interested in the discovery of some synthetic substance, which, when given internally to the fierce trio of South College, will act as a damper on over-exultant spirits. Although "Murry" is a dark horse socially, we entertain high hopes for his future.

As the original factotum of 1921 "Pa" stands supreme, unquestioned. He possesses an unusual knack of doing anything from climbing over porch roofs after a midnight frolic in "Hamp" to hibernating in the library twelve hours in succession for Dr. Cance. One of "Pa's" greatest sources of amusement is dancing in the Unity Church with a certain individual from Mt. Pleasant. "Do you wear your galoshes flopping, Henry? Oh dear!" The record of Phil's activities sounds as though he were headed straight for a sharpshooter's medal, or a commission in the battalion of death, but quite the opposite is the case, for he intends to spend his spare time helping nature to beautify the barren places of the globe. He finds time after attending every meeting of the landscape art club to seek out partners for the informals at Smith and Mt. Holyoke. Last, but not least, Phil can run, and with a pair of pedal extremities like his, the record of John Paul Jones ought to be smashed most any time.

"Rosie" is one of those quiet, studious chaps who doesn't mumble a great deal, but hangs onto everything for future reference. He does, however, live under a constant strain, sad to say, due to the fact that the other two members of the "Trio" are such a noisy pair. We fear for his future, for he developed an uncanny appetite for Monkey Park last spring, and it is reported that he ventured to smoke a cigarette—once! Funny he never smoked another, now isn't it? Maybe he wants to save his wind for basketball and fussing.

He is a typical specimen of the genus "Fussus" and is easily distinguished from other varieties by his varied habitats. "Sammie" developed a strong liking for the army life, and became one of the mighty "looties" of the "Bloke's" army during his sophomore year. His desire to "treat 'em rough" overseas almost kept him from the coveted sheepskin, but he came back with us, evincing a desire to learn more of the genus Insecta, both crawling and flying. And sometime, we don't know just when, we wouldn't be surprised to hear of "Gawge" catching a beautiful butterfly without the aid of a net, and settling down for life in the balmy climate, and amidst the pleasant surroundings of the South Sea Isles.

However, the blonde boy's knowledge of campus traditions early won him recognition in the form of a nice, clean, cool bath. But when it comes to a real, peppy, ardent supporter of '21 he is hard to beat. Incidentally, it might be mentioned that the "Gob Bus" is a great friend of "Ken's" for in spite of spending so many years in such close proximity to Smith, he still fain would wander that way.

He has been frequently seen at informals, and across the river, he wears "Ells" and shakes a wicked hip, and numerous other good traits too many to mention. A proportionally prodigious intellect, contained within the osseous anterior annex of a minute metabolic mechanism, propelled by a pair of diminutive appendages is the predominating characteristic of this bimordial addition to our class, which arrived at the beginning of our sophomore year. He is preordained to be an eminent "bugologist," and is proceeding in that direction with great celerity, absorbing with avidity all knowledge which comes his way.

Our unassuming student, authority on all subjects pertaining to academic culture. He is a sizzling, scrapping, slashing slave driver when it comes to books. He is a real steeved-ent of rare ability. He claimed all great men had their peculiarities, that's why he cultivated the Rifle Team. To see him at his best, it is necessary to observe him when in the presence of the fair sex, which fact some of our co-eds may corroborate. Beware the melodious music of falling rice, "Prof."

Behold! A co-ed who is seen but not heard. Wonder of wonders, and prodigy of prodigies, a girl whose tongue is not in perpetual motion. Emily is a sympathetic, good-natured, silent, reserved, hard-working, deep-thinking, level-headed Puritanical sort of girl. There is real substance to her character and with all she makes a right good companion, and a sincere friend. She is the only co-ed who has succeeded in making "Billy" think she has any horse sense.

"Dick" is from Middlefield, and also from that far-famed western state of Missouri, and by that let it be understood that he is extremely anxious to be shown. But just show him, and all the king's horses couldn't keep him from fighting to the last ditch for a proposition that looked good. Someone has said, "If you want to find the real heroes, look at Team C." Incidentally, you would find "Dick."

Just as the sun was setting over the effervescent hills of Amherst on a balmy September afternoon, Tscharner Degraffenreidt Watkins appeared in our presence, hailing from the illicit county of Moonshine, Virginia. And Jonah was immediately spirited into twenty-one, just like the product he represents would have been if it was present. He came to us imbued with the idea of studying Landscape Art, so that he could apply himself to the blue ridged mountains of his native haunts. He flirts with a monocle, we believe, and we have reason to suspect that "that ain't all."

Here we present the Howard Chandler Christy of '21. Rumor has it that "Webby" is one of the Squib's highest paid artists. He is a pronounced addict to the vile weed and will exhibit to any interested bystander the most perfect of smoke rings. We often hear of his entanglements with Malden's "finest" when jazzing around in his little air-cooled. Before the big scrap "Webby" was allied with '20, but after his return from the service, by mutual agreement with "Billy," he decided to seek further development with '21.

Although the wings on Guy's heels were merely in the sprouting stage during his introduction year at Aggie, they have grown to a distinguishable size since then. His choice in track aviation has been the long distances, and he is one of our best mountain climbers in the cross country grinds. Guy had the social situation in Amherst sized up from the moment he arrived, and can assure you a place in the society circle if you follow his lead. When at home, summers, he assumes the duties of manager on a large and magnificent estate near Amesbury.

The name of this man sounds as if there had been a carpenter or shipbuilder somewhere in the family, and we suspect it must be the latter, for "Whit" first saw the light of day near the Shipbuilding Corporation at the Squantum Marshes. C. P. has constantly made it a point to devote spare time from athletics to his education, and has succeeded in knocking down the major part of the century mark for an average. Those who know him best say that he is something of a social light down in Weymouth, and that there may be reasons for his avoiding the feminine institutions of learning near here. Parker's early associations with south shore agriculture have aroused in him a desire to learn more of the science, and less of the manual labor connected therewith, in consequence of which Agricultural Chemistry is his chosen calling.

It was in our freshman year that a loud disturbance was heard at the depot. Lo, and behold, it was "Smoky Joe," arguing with the engineer as to who should do the tooting. After much argument "Joe" finally won out, and he has been blowing it ever since. An informal without "Joe's" saxophone would be about as huge a success as "an arena party without the tar and feathers." Besides being a wonder on the saxophone, he is a very quiet, unassuming sort of fellow, one whom we all value as a friend.

This quiet, conscientious man from West Virginia has often-times been known to creep into a quiet corner of the library and remain hidden to all for countless hours. When he finally does come back to the "Old North End" he moves with a slow, laborious shuffle. His feet and neck seem to have actually flattened under the weight of the volumes that he has devoured. Yet, despite his deep scientific probing, he steals a little bit of time each Sunday at six P. M. and with one long, hungry look at his treasured shelves he forsakes them all for a few short hours and rides "over the mountain" for his only taste of romance.

In Memoriam

Treuman Eugene Kile

April 19, 1898-December 6, 1918

Whenever a classmate dies, all with whom he associates suffer a loss which cannot be estimated. When one dies in the service of his country, the personal loss is outweighed by the supreme service which he rendered to all. Such was the case of Treuman Kile.

In 1917 Kile entered the Massachusetts Agricultural College, intent on fitting himself to serve mankind. It is difficult to say what Treuman Kile might have meant to the college and to his associates, had he lived. During the one short year among us, he showed himself to be a hard worker, earnest, faithful, willing, and respected by all. He possessed a strong character and loved all that was fine in life. Called by the voice of war he returned to college in the fall of 1918 in the military service, to train for the defense of his country and of humanity. True to his nature Kile's service in the army was honest and faithful. While he was yet in training, he was overcome by the hand of death. Although his service was short, he gave all that was in him to give—his life. The place he left can never be filled, but his memory will live. His personal loss was great, but he gave his "last full measure of devotion." He was a member of the Theta Chi Fraternity.

In Memoriam

Ralph Roby McCormack

January 8, 1897-february 7, 1919

On February 7th, 1919, the class of 1921 lost one of her most highly esteemed members. Ralph McCormack completed his Freshman year here at Aggie. Immediately afterward he enlisted in the Naval Aviation service and was sent to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he received his ground-school training. From there he went to Key West and later to Pensacola, at which place he met his death.

McCormack was out flying with two other ensigns when their machine was seen to take a nose-dive. Nothing was thought of the incident, however, until the men failed to return at the usual time. A search was made and the three bodies were recovered from the wreckage of their hydroplane.

In college "Mac" was captain of the Freshman football team and a member of the Freshman baseball team. He was a leading character in the Freshman play, and much of its success was due to his faithful work. "Mac" was one of the most popular men in his class and was very promising material for varsity athletics.

"Mac" will always be remembered as one with aggressiveness and a disposition which was always indicated by his smile and ever-ready good word for all. He was a member of the Kappa Sigma Fraternity.

George Henry Richards

October 22, 1897-January 13, 1920

George Henry Richards entered M. A. C. in the fall of 1916. He at once entered into the activities of the class taking an active part in all class contests and functions. That fall he was a member of the class tennis team, and was elected manager of the class rifle team. During the winter he played with the Freshman basketball team, and with the baseball team in the spring. In his Sophomore and Junior years he continued to figure in athletics, playing tennis, basketball and baseball, and received his letter in the latter sport in the spring of 1919.

Leaving college in January, 1918, George enlisted in the Air Service. He received his discharge twelve months later at the Army Balloon School at Fort Omaha, Nebraska, and entered college again as a member of the class of 1921. This present year he had just taken over his active duties as Advertising Manager of the 1921 INDEX, and was playing on the basketball squad when he was overtaken by sickness. Septic poisoning set in, and he passed away after an illness of six days.

It is not, however, his enviable record as a student and an athlete that we most admired George for. With his cheerful personality, warmth of heart, and ready hand, he was always helping those around him. His big whole-heartedness swallowed up the petty troubles and inspired his many friends to carry on with him. His class, his fraternity, and the college have lost a man. He was a member of the Phi Sigma Kappa Fraternity.

Sophomore Class History

The time has come when the class of 1922 shall, for the second time, place a record of her exploits before the world. To say the least, our two years at old Aggie have been very successful ones.

In January, 1918, we invaded the campus one hundred and twenty strong, and as the college was in a rather upset condition, much of the task of bringing back old customs fell to us. In athletics, we showed up well from the start, defeating the Sophomores in basketball 20—10, and ending in second place in the inter-class series; besides placing two men on the varsity five.

In every respect our freshman banquet was a complete victory for us. The Sophomores, realizing our prowess, decided to keep a part of the class at least from enjoying the banquet, so they broke the rules and abducted a goodly truck-load of us to Shutesbury, where the unfortunates were handcuffed around a post. Nothing daunted, however, these valiant men broke down the post, and were loosed from their bracelets by a kindly farmer. After this they hiked back over the mountains to Amherst, where they learned that their brothers had beaten the Sophomores and placed them in stocks. The class was present to a man at the banquet held at the Bridgway, Springfield.

In the fall of 1919, the class once more gathered. The usual number of our classmates had succumbed to the study disease, but their places were filled by many worthy "Ex" men from war service. We organized our old spirit at once, and struck terror into the hearts of the Freshmen by defeating them in straight bouts in the wrestling matches by easily winning the nightshirt parade. Remembering our experience of the previous year, we soon resolved the sixty-man rope pull into a question of how far we could pull the Freshmen. Before the final gun, every Freshman came through the sparkling waters. Our football warriors could not keep the crack Freshman team from winning by a small score. So far we are in the lead of the inter-class series of basketball, and though we have not met the Freshmen yet, we look forward to this event as well as to the baseball and banquet seasons.

Not only are we strong in class contests, but we also had more than ten men on last fall's football squad, and at present we have six men on the varsity basketball squad. This shows that the spirit of twenty-two is not merely class spirit, but is the true spirit of old Aggie.

Freshman Class History

AS WE piled out of the train into what seemed a God-forsaken country, and scrambled up the hill and over the bridge, we heard a groan from beneath our feet, and a deep voice cried out, "Take ye care how ye pass o'er me. I am aged and feeble from the strain of other classes treading o'er me on their way to Aggie. Ye, however, are lightened by the pep which shall help revive old Aggie's spirit. Ye gladden my heart, so must I speak though I may suffer pain.

"Ye shall follow the straight and narrow path as laid down to ye by your elder brothers. Ye shall not be green for long, nor shall ye be yellow at any time.

"Ye shall lose in the sixty-man rope pull, but have ye courage—the pond will be refreshing unto ye. And the nightshirt parade—alas! in that also shall ye suffer. But hark! I hear a muffled drum, and a splash, and then another. Ah yes! it is but some few of ye who do not believe that a straight line is the shortest path between two points and so are becoming acquainted with the time-honored pond through the medium of your predecessors.

"What now? A drizzling rain and the cries, 'Hold 'em, '23' and '1-9-2-3 Team! Team! Team!' Ah! I see a howling mass on both sides of the field as the whistle blows, with the football safe from the hands of '22, with a score of 13 to 0. And now six of ye are straining at the rope against six of your opponents and hurrah! ye win. Ye are speedily climbing the ladder to success.

"Hush! ye are deep in the intricacies of 'logs' and the agonies of 'Agro.' Ye must not be disturbed, for to-morrow—Ah! Finals! That's all!

"Now ye are settled once again and are ready for what? The banquet, where ye shall——"

Alas! we had all crossed the bridge and the voice was silent. As to the rest of our history, actions will speak louder than words.

1921 INDEX FOOTBALL

Football Season of 1919

CAPTAIN POND

The 1919 football season, which opened with a speedy game against Connecticut "Aggie," and ended with a thrilling clash with Tufts, was by far the most successful that M. A. C. has had for many years. Starting with a goodly amount of material but a scarcity of varsity men, the team slowly took shape. Those who had prophesied a minimum of two years for the building of a superior team were astonished when the first opponent was met and easily defeated.

A whirlwind start was the defeating of Connecticut with a final score of 15-7. The individual playing, line plunges, end runs, and the skillfulness of the team as a unit showed that all M. A. C.'s former football spirit was not lost and that once again "Aggie" had come into the lime-light.

Eagerly the next game was looked forward to, and the following week the team, accompanied by a goodly number of students, journeyed to Hanover, N. H. Then it was that the Maroon and White came through by scoring the first touchdown on the Green that has been recorded in many years in the history of this college.

Next came the games with Worcester P. I. and Vermont, and here again "Aggie" was superior on the gridiron, winning each game by a large score. A clash with New Hampshire State was next in order, and it was here that the Maroon and White suffered the second and last defeat of the season, when a field goal, scored in the last minutes of the play, left our opponents with a score of 9-7.

The real contest of the season came when "Aggie" moved en masse to Springfield. Here the real playing of the year was displayed. Although neither side was able to score, the Maroon and White showed superior tact and skill, decisively defeating the Springfield in their aerial playing. After the game was over there was no doubt left in the minds of the citizens whether or no "Aggie" had actually hit town. A bonfire, snake dance, and various supper and theatre parties were enjoyed, and when M. A. C. came home that night even the little disinterested college of Amherst took note of it.

But if the season was to come to a successful close everyone knew that Tufts must be defeated. So with the motto "Tie Springfield and beat Tufts" the team came on to the gridiron the next week keyed for the battle royal. A hard fought game was witnessed with thrill after thrill resulting; but the powerful line, heavy backfield, and trick plays of her opponents were no sufficient obstacle for "Aggie." The conquerors of Detroit were baffled at every turn and the game came to a close with the Maroon and White victor with a 14-0 score.

The bonfires which followed brought to a close one of the most successful and thrilling seasons that an "Aggie" team has ever experienced on the gridiron. Much of the credit for this success is due to Coach Gore and Assistant Coaches Grayson and Palmer, all three true "Aggie" men. A decisive victory of a perfect and smooth-running machine over an old rival was even more gratifying to the team than to the "Aggie" rooters. Such "drive" and "pep" spells success for future gridiron battles at M. A. C.

BASEBALL

Season of 1920

CAPTAIN FAXON

The baseball season of the past year, although unsatisfactory from a final score standpoint, was most encouraging to those directly interested in the welfare of M. A. C.'s future diamond activities. With the college opening in January, athletics took a new lease of life and pre-war standards were once more eagerly sought. Baseball was one of the first sports that drew the attention of "Aggie" men.

The spirit shown in February and March, when one of the largest baseball squads in the history of the college turned out for practice, was indicative of that which carried through the season. Handicapped by many obstacles, the team was slowly whipped into shape by Coach Gore, and when the first game of the season arrived the men were well primed for the contest.

The push, speed, and alertness shown by every man in the game with Williams on the 19th of April was worthy of comment, and although we were beaten by one point, everyone felt that the first contest had really been successful.

In the Springfield game the team held true to M. A. C.'s former records, and came through with a decisive victory over their old opponents. The game was one of the most exciting of the year. With a score of 1-1 neither side seemed to be able to make the hit that would bring in the winning run. When the last inning came nearly all of the rooters were willing to agree that a "toss-up" would be the only way to settle the final score. But "Aggie's" nine was determined to win and with the old "do or die" spirit it sailed in again. A hit beyond the fielders' reach brought in the necessary point and the Maroon and White came through in her "lucky ninth."

The next game was with Amherst. Fully two-thirds of the college witnessed a game full of pep, thrills, and excitement, and the exhibition proved that the team had been plugging and practicing with all of their possible power. Time and again the bases were filled by both sides, but each time the necessary hit was lost. The Maroon and White brought in the first and only count until the ninth inning. That inning, as in the Springfield game, decided the victor. "Aggie" was in the field and Amherst at bat. The bases were filled. The shouts of the crowd unnerved the players slightly, and when a hit was made the strain proved to be too much, and several errors allowed two Amherst men to cross the plate. The game came to a close with "Aggie" trailing by one point.

Although the team met with a majority of defeats, they played throughout the season with true "Aggie" spirit of "pep and fight." A promising lot of material has been developed for the teams of the future and with several strong players returning to college from war service, we may look for a banner season in 1920.

HOCKEY

Season of 1920

The hockey team has suffered considerable disappointment this year. A schedule of twelve games was arranged, but due to adverse weather conditions, coupled with the influenza, which seemed to choose several of our loyal puck chasers among its victims, only five of these games could be played. These obstacles have been keenly felt as the prospects for a continued successful season were very promising.

The games which proved to be the most interesting were those played during the three-day trip to Boston, including Springfield Y. M. C. A. College, Boston University and Boston College. On account of the death of President MacLaurin of Technology, the game with "Tech" was cancelled and one with Boston University was substituted.

By far the most strenuous and exciting game of the season was that played with Boston College at Chestnut Hill. After two twenty-minute periods of hard-fought play, the score stood a tie, 4—4. Two five-minute overtime periods followed. Neither team was able to score. Finally, both captains agreed to play a "sudden-death" period and "Aggie" scored a goal the first three minutes, making the final score a 5—4 victory.

The last game of the season was played with Dartmouth at Hanover, and was a neck and neck race between the contestants as to who would score the first goal. In the last few minutes of play, the Green wriggled one past our guard and the team met its second defeat.

Despite all adversities, however, the team showed itself to be one of the fastest and most skillful that has ever represented "Old Aggie," and of great importance is the strong foundation laid for next year's team, even though the loss of the '20 men will be keenly felt. An important factor in the existing success of the team, is the coaching work of Mansell. "Sonny" worked untiringly, insisted on strict training and imbued a spirit into the men that spelled success from the start.

Season of 1920

The 1920 Basketball season opened with several familiar faces on the squad consisting of Captain Forrest Brayson, '20, the late Allan L. Pond, '20, Hawley, '20, the late George H. Richards, '21, Lent, '21, Smith, '22, and Gowdy, '22. These men, together with Thompson, '22, A. W. Smith, '22, Kroeck, '22, and Bowen, '22, formed the nucleus that "Kid" Gore had been working with and turned over to coach Emory Grayson, '17, at the start of the season. Although the first game was a defeat for Aggie at the hands of the fast C. A. C. team, which had already made a fine start, the team showed the old Aggie spirit and defeated our rivals, Amherst and Tufts, in fast games featured by stellar work. Aggie showed her ability as a road team by defeating R. P. I. and then C. A. C. in a return game and by forcing the fast N. H. State Team to go two five-minute overtime periods to secure the verdict. Aggie's showing against Stevens both on the drill hall surface and at Hoboken further testified to the ability of Emory Grayson as coach. Aggie's defeat of Dartmouth in the Drill Hall by a score of 8 to 6 was of interest both because of the close blocking by the two teams and because the result eliminated the Green team from New England Championship honors. The work of Captain Grayson, Pond, A. W. Smith, and Readio, who joined the squad in the middle of the season, was of high caliber. Center was handled by Thompson and S. V. Smith creditably, while the back court was well taken care of by Stedman, Lent, and Gowdy. Much credit is due Manager Campbell for the fine manner in which he handled his department. The season with 7 victories out of 15 games was deemed satisfactory.

CAPTAIN GRAYSON

The Spring Track Season of 1919

In the spring of '19 "Aggie" was again represented on the cinders, for the first time since 1916. The first dual meet ever held on Alumni Field resulted in a victory for the Maroon and White over Trinity. We were represented at the Eastern Intercollegiate Meet in Springfield, but failed to obtain a place. Two other dual meets, were held during the season; one with Middlebury College at Middlebury, and the other with New Hampshire at Amherst. In the first meet "Aggie" came through with another victory, defeating Middlebury's strong team by one point. New Hampshire brought a superior aggregation to Amherst and defeated M. A. C. by a considerable margin. At the New England Intercollegiate Meet in Boston, Sullivan, '22, scored "Aggie's" one point, placing fourth in the 100-yard dash against a good field. During the season two college records were broken by Meserve, '20, in the high and low hurdles. Taking into consideration the fact that this was the first outdoor track team which "Aggie" has had in three years, the season can be pronounced fairly successful. Coach Dickinson certainly deserves considerable credit for obtaining the good results he did with a practically green squad. Three letter men remain from last year's team, Lyons, Meserve, and Sullivan, as well as a number of promising men who were on last year's squad. Several freshmen have shown up well on the boards this winter and should make a valuable asset to the team. With such a squad to build around and develop, prospects look bright for another successful season in M. A. C.'s track history.

The Cross Country Season of 1919

The cross country season last fall saw the appearance of a varsity team at "Aggie" after a lapse of three years. An attractive schedule, including four dual meets and the New England Intercollegiate race was arranged. Oliver Flint, '16, of the '16-'17 track teams, was secured as coach during Coach Dickinson's leave of absence. The races with Worcester Tech and Vermont were won by M. A. C. without severe opposition. In the last two races, against New Hampshire and Williams, the lack of men with varsity experience was a handicap. The fighting spirit that we boast about at "Aggie" was present in every race. Next year with coach Dickinson back and four of this year's varsity team in college, a strong team is anticipated.

The Relay Season of 1919

A good start was made with the return of a number of men from military service. The first race was easily won from New Hampshire at the East Armory in Boston. The second race against Dartmouth at the Annual B. A. A. Meet went to Dartmouth on a double foul. "Aggie's" first man was pushed down, but continued the race, the third man over-stepped the tag limit, and the race went to the leading team. This race, however, was re-run because of dissatisfaction over the first decision, and went to Dartmouth by a small margin after a hard, close fight. The season, which can be said to have been a good one, was marred by lack of meets at which the team could compete.

Rifle-Club

Season of 1918-19

From the earliest days in the history of rifle shooting as an intercollegiate sport M. A. C. has been famous for her rifle teams. She has in the past, and still stands in the foremost rank of the colleges of the nation in this form of athletics, and has won the championship of the country in the National Rifle Association matches four times.

The student body manifests considerable interest in the rifle club and competition for places on the team is keen. Usually, fifty or more men try out for places on the varsity team, and this without any of the exhortation which is sometimes resorted to in order to get a large number of students to participate in other athletics.

The man who makes his "M" on the rifle team earns it, both by reason of the strong competition that he meets and because of the fact that he must make one of the five best scores in seventy-five per cent of the matches. Rifle shooting is not like other athletic contests. Everything depends on the individual, who must keep himself in condition, as must all athletes, and in addition to this has to keep his nerves and muscles under perfect control at all times during the matches. If they get the better of him for an instant his team-mates cannot cover him up while he regains control of himself; there is no cheering to encourage him; in short there is no external stimulus; his own will power must be supreme or he fails. For this reason, although there are many who aspire to it there are but few who become good shots. M. A. C. has her share of these few.

CAPTAIN LAMBERT

In the past season of '19 the indoor team made second place in the National Rifle Association matches. For the last few years there has been no outdoor team on account of the unsettled conditions brought about by the war. It is expected, however, that there will be an outdoor team this year. The prospects of a successful season this year for the indoor team are good, for although several of the best shots of last year's team have graduated there are four veterans back again, namely, Robinson, Sanderson, Sanford, and Tillson. Among the new men this year, Lambert and Cook are especially promising.

The Roister Doisters

The purpose of the Roister Doister Dramatic Society is to bring before the undergraduates of the college, strictly by means of student talent, the best productions obtainable in drama and comedy. As a result of this liberal policy the society has enjoyed a most enviable record among student activities, financially and otherwise, since its re-organization in 1915.

The history of dramatics at M. A. C. can be traced back to 1912, at which time there existed an organization known as the "Dramatic Society." In 1914 this society assumed the name "Roister Doister Dramatic Association" and began their career by presenting at Prom time a successful comedy entitled "Her Husband's Wife." Even greater heights were attained with the presentation of an original musical comedy, "Pluto's Daughter," at the 1915 Commencement. This production was entirely the work of undergraduates, and it is still looked upon as the acme of achievement in dramatics at M. A. C.

The 1915-1916 season commenced with the re-organization of the society, under the supervision of the Non-Athletic Association. The two shows of the year, "Under Cover" and "A Full House" were received enthusiastically and helped place the association on its feet financially. This season showed conclusively that dramatics are an essential part of the non-athletics of the college. The great success of the season was undoubtedly due to the intense interest shown by Manager Nicholson, '16.

The declaration of war in 1917 forced the society to abandon its Commencement program. However, at Prom time the three-act farce, "The Arrival of Kitty," was given with pronounced success. From April, 1917, to January, 1919, the organization was but a pleasant memory in the minds of many. With the opening of college, January, 1919, sufficient interest was aroused in the student body to warrant the resurrection of dramatics. With Hastings, '19, as general Producing Manager and Boardman, '20, as Business Manager, the two dramatic farces entitled "Are You a Mason," and "Officer 666" were staged before well filled houses.

Work has already commenced on the Prom Show for 1920, which will be the well known New York production, "Nothing but the Truth."

The work of producing is entirely in the hands of the management, which consists of a General Manager from the Senior class, a Business Manager from the Junior class, and two Assistant Business Managers from the Sophomore class. No professional coaches are employed.

Season of 1919-1920

The Musical Clubs form one of the most important branches of non-athletics. Their value is, perhaps, greater than any other activity in so much as a larger number of men are enabled to take part and their trips are more extensive, consisting of annual trips to towns about Boston and usually a trip to New York, besides the local trips. Membership in the clubs is governed by the ability of the individual, scholarship, and regularity in attending rehearsals. The eligibility rules of the clubs allow only those men who are maintaining a good standing in their classes to take part. Many men have developed into excellent musicians under the training received from competent coaches.

The Musical Clubs are composed of three divisions: Glee Club, Mandolin Club, and Orchestra. The number of men who, finally, are chosen to make up the clubs varies from year to year, but usually averages about thirty-five. As the expense of an extended trip, like that to Boston, is very large, only those men are taken who have attended rehearsals regularly, and show ability.

The season of 1919-1920 has been very successful under the managership of Robert S. Horne, '20. The feature trip of the season was made to Boston and several surrounding towns during the Christmas recess. Concerts were given in Newton, Derry (N. H.), Newburyport, and at the Copley Plaza Hotel in Boston. All of the concerts were well attended and successful, both musically and financially. The local concerts were given in Holyoke, Amherst, Hadley and on the campus. Of these, probably, that given New Year's in Amherst was most appreciated.

The success of the clubs this year is due in a large part to the excellent solo work of Harlan Worthley, '20, who never failed to find an appreciative audience. The work of the quartet, consisting of Crowe, '20, Goff, '21, Haslam, '21, and Vinten, '22, is also worthy of note. The fine spirit which was ever predominant in the concerts was due considerably to the quartet, whose selections were original songs composed by Vinten.

PUBLICATIONS

AGGIE SQUIB  THE INDEX

Publications at M. A. C.

Publications at M. A. C. have been numerous, ranging from the sublime to the ridiculous in text and from newspaper to pamphlet in form. Up to date, a very few have succeeded in withstanding the ravages of time, some having lasted for a very few brief years, while the majority have given their message in a few issues.

The most important of all the publications of the college is The Massachusetts Collegian. It was the first actual newspaper of the college, making its initial appearance October 1, 1891, under the name of Aggie Life. After eleven years of success, the name was changed in November 1901 to The College Signal in compliance with a vote of the student body to drop the word "Aggie" in reference to the college whenever possible. In 1914-1915 the name of the paper was again changed to The Massachusetts Collegian on the ground that The College Signal was not a sufficiently distinctive title. The paper today contains eight pages and is issued weekly by the students of the college. It has an approximate circulation of 1,500 as compared to 400 in 1901. A new staff is elected annually by competition. At present The Collegian is enjoying a most enviable position among college papers, and it is hoped that in the future through a careful selection of the staff, its present good rating can be constantly maintained.

Publications representing the wit of the campus have been exceedingly slow in appearing. In the early nineties, a semi-humorous pamphlet entitled The Menagerie existed, but its life was short. In 1914-1915 The War Cry, a leaflet form of humor, appeared and it was so successful that it later led the way to the establishment of The Aggie Squib in magazine form. The Squib at present is published six times a year and rates very high.

The INDEX, a college annual published by the junior class, was founded in 1869 by the first class to enter the college, and first appeared as a pamphlet designed to show "the internal growth, and the status of the college." It has been published regularly since its foundation, constantly increasing in size and quality. The term "College Annual" has been officially adopted this year in compliance with an overwhelming vote of the student body, with the ultimate aim in mind of standardizing the book.

Other publications appearing on the campus but not falling under the class of student publications are The Alumni Bulletin, published monthly by the "Associate Alumni of the Massachusetts Agricultural College" in the interest of the alumni; the Y. M. C. A. Handbook, alias The Freshman Bible, published in behalf of the sub-freshmen and containing general information of value to the entering classes; the College bulletins issued eight times a year, in which can be found any information desired concerning the various courses in the curriculum; and numerous bulletins and pamphlets of the Experiment Station and the Extension Service.

The War Record of the College

"Fourscore and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal."

These were the words of Abraham Lincoln at Gettysburg on November 19, 1863. The "Saviour of His Country" was addressing the throngs which were gathered there to hear him dedicate the Gettysburg National Cemetery, the last resting place of thousands of the nation's dead. Thousands of red-blooded young Americans died on that field, that democracy as represented by the Union of the United States of America might live.

Fifty-six years later America reached the close of another period of strife, more gigantic and more significant than the above mentioned. The object in both struggles was essentially the same, that democracy might live, and thereby the sacred principles that our forefathers laid down when founding this nation might be kept ever inviolate. The momentous difference was that during the recent conflict America fought for the freedom and democracy of the entire world.

In viewing the record that "Aggie" has written into the books of time, who can doubt but that she has done her share? Many of her sons went forth. Some came back with decorations, some without. Some came back facing a life of physical disability, some did not. We are proud of them all. But there are those who will never come back. They made the supreme sacrifice, the giving of their lives for an ideal—democracy. It is for those men that we bow our heads in humble admiration. Whatever the future may bring, "Aggie" may point with pride to the record of her sons in the great world war.

It is but fitting and proper that some memorial should be erected to commemorate "Aggie's" honored dead. The Memorial Building is our best effort, possessing as it does both virtues of being a monument to our heroes and at the same time useful to the living generation. The world must advance; and in the onward development should find time to honor those who have sacrificed themselves in the process of world progress. The Memorial Building is a step forward for M. A. C.

But it is not enough that we should stop here, with the mere erection of a building. The future still lies before us with the innumerable problems of the age. You Aggie men, undergraduates and alumni, be not content to bask in the reflected glory of these men's deeds! Be up and doing for yourself! Accomplish the worthwhile! Help make the world safer still for democracy and all that it implies!

"It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people, and for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

SHORT COURSES

Second Year Class

First Year Class

Short Courses at M. A. C.

History and Purpose of the Short Courses

The first short course at the Massachusetts Agricultural College was offered in 1900, when a winter course for farmers was organized. From 1910 to 1918 the short courses were under the direction of the Extension service. In 1918 a separate administration was made by the Trustees and the President by the appointment of Professor John Phelan as director of short courses.

Short courses are designed for students who can not take the four year college course, yet who are too mature to enter the secondary schools of agriculture. The instruction offered in short course work is not preparatory or elementary in its nature but is designed to provide the best possible opportunity for the following classes of students:

1. Young men and women who have completed only the elementary schools or perhaps a year or two of high school work but who have been out of school for several years.
2. High school graduates who cannot meet college entrance requirements.
3. Practical farmers and farm women.
4. College graduates who wish short intensive courses in practical subjects.
5. Professional men and women who wish to know something of modern methods in agriculture.

No young man or woman who can meet the requirements of entrance to college should be satisfied with less than a four-year college course.

Three new short courses were established during the fiscal year 1918-1919. As now organized, the following schools and courses are open to all citizens of the Commonwealth, seventeen years of age or over, who can do the work:

The Two-Year Course in Practical Agriculture, organized in 1918, with a present enrollment of two hundred twenty-four students.

The Summer School of Agriculture and Country Life. A plan of co-operation between the College and the Massachusetts Board of Education was tried as an experiment in the summer of 1919. Two hundred sixty students, the largest in the history of the college, were enrolled in the summer school. The result was so satisfactory that the plan will be continued during 1920.

Unit courses. Special courses beginning each month in Arithmetic, English, and practical subjects were organized to meet the needs of the Federal men who could not take the Two-Year Course. Forty-six students are now enrolled in these courses.

A One-Year Rural Engineering Course, designed for students who wish to become expert in gas engines and farm tractors.

The One-Year Vocational Poultry Course. This course has been offered for several years and is planned for the practical poultry man.

The Ten-Weeks Winter School for farmers and their wives and others who wish intensive practical training. The Winter School has served the needs of a large group of men and women from the farms each year.

Short Course Student Council

In order that the men of the Two-year Course might perfect a system of self-government, President Butterfield appointed the following men to serve as a temporary committee: Messrs. Hall, Estey, Torrey, Kirchner, Davis, Reid, Clapp, W. B. Shaw, Burrington, Burke, Connor, C. D. Shaw.

After a conference with the Student Senate, a plan of organization was submitted to and approved by the President. The members of the Short-Course Student Council are elected by their respective classes as follows:

(a) Freshman Two-Year class—4 representatives to be elected early in the fall term to serve until the early part of the winter term; 4 representatives elected in the winter term to serve one year.

(b) Senior Two-Year class—2 representatives to be elected in the fall term to serve during the college year.

(c) Vocational Poultry class—1 representative to be elected for the first term of its college year.

(d) One-Year Rural Engineering class—1 representative to be elected early in the fall term to serve through said term.

Athletics

Progress in athletic organization was hindered by the fact that the Two-Year entering class was very large and all plans were not completed. Mr. Emory Grayson was appointed physical director and advisor for the Two-Year men. A good beginning was made, taking into consideration that the men were new to the campus and were not acquainted.

Football

A football team was organized and games were played with Williston, Holyoke, Springfield College Seconds, and the M. A. C. Third Team.

GRANDS

The Average 1921 Man

(Based on Actual Statistics from the Class)

Meeting the ideal representative of 1921 one would be impressed first of all with his physical makeup. Five feet eight and two-fifth inches tall, weighing one hundred forty-eight and four-fifths pounds, with brown hair and blue eyes, he would be, to say the least, a smooth looker. Attired in a dark blue suit, this imaginary individual would attract more than passing attention, in fact he would warrant being taken into your conversational circles.

Before talking with him to learn what was beneath the surface, some further details of attire should be mentioned, by way of introduction, as well as disclosing his shortcomings, for remember he is at best an average Junior, and not perfect. He wears a size fifteen collar, seven and three quarters gloves, cannot cram his head into anything smaller than a size seven hat, and his number eight shoes reveal that he has large feet for his size. July first, 1919, meant no privation in this youth's life. His only bad habit is smoking, his favorite pipe tobacco being Edgeworth and the cigarettes of his choice, Lucky Strikes. We do not advance the following as a fault, but it might be interesting to get him to tell why, he is in favor of co-education at Aggie.

Our composite man prefers life in fraternity houses to that in the dorm, is a loyal supporter of the hash-house, and is an active person in undergraduate activities, particularly athletics, football being his favorite sport.

This average '21 man plans to lead the simple life in after-years, judging by his following An. Hus. as a major line of work here in college. In studies he rates well up. To him Hort. is the biggest gut, and Ag. Ec. the most exasperating. Though the curriculum offered to him does not savor of the classical, he is interested in art and music.

Socially Mr. 1921 is lured by the dance hall, and attends informals very regularly, preferably with the feminine society of Smith, for with him this institution rates much higher than Mt. Holyoke. Were the dance halls to close, the movies would be the second choice of this individual.

Nor need this typical Junior be compelled to talk altogether of campus activities, for his vision is broader, and he is interested in many phases of the world's development and progress. He could advance definite views on the political situation in America, as well as reveal that he knew considerable of the onward march of science.

Withal, this average representative of the class, that we would have you picture, combines those qualities that would make him truly representative of the college-trained man of the world.

A new invention, called conducting aluminum, which is said to be creating a profound impression, has been made by Dr. George Giulini, the most famous expert in the aluminum trade. Consul Philip Holland, Bas-

My dearest Father John (under the counter at Deuels) :

Enclosed herewith is a photo, taken recently, one morning after dinner, on the veranda, of my oldest of seventeen children, Percival John Henry. This little darling is now well and strong, thanks to your wonderful medicine. As a child he was weak and not able to travel without getting shaky in the knees, but since he began taking your cure, carefully following directions on back of bottle, he now seems robust and capable of supporting himself. One of the neighbors told me that he was strong enough to run for a ball over the mountain, but he confessed to me that this was a bigger weakness and not in his knees at all. We keep him in the open air as much as possible, this photo showing the little dear dressed in his bloomers and a smile, ready for a romp in the park with nurse. We believe this snapshot speaks for itself, as well as being an excellent advertisement for Paris garters and pearl buttons, and hope you will use it to advertise your antiseptic axle grease for colds.

Lovingly yours,

GENEVIEVE.

ODE TO THE CHEM. LAB.

We left thee in our sophomore days,
To go away to war,
And when we came a marching home,
You stood there as before.

For fifty years thy walls have stood,
They shake at every step,
We've feared they'd fall on "Tabby's" prov
Or crush Prof. Peterdown.

They gave us a new co-ed's dorm,
We didn't wish it so,
Yet still they will not vote us coin,
To build a lab for Paul.

Thy faucets leak; thy floors are weak;
Thy gas jets, off and on;
And he who would a landmark seek,
To thee, our chem. lab. comes.

Here's to thee, tattered chem. lab. wreck
That stands beside North Dorm.;
Some day we'll put a marble slab,*
Where you have stood so long.

(*Or "modern lab."—Vide, Mass. State Legislature)

The Feed that makes the Yield

Cut Down Your Cost

A NUMBER of the most successful dairymen testified before the Federal Milk Commission, which has been fixing the price of milk from the producer to the consumer, that they had cut down their costs of production by feeding Corn Gluten Feed and wheat bran freely in grain rations they mixed themselves.

The Commission must have been convinced by what these representative good dairymen had to say about different feeds and the economy of a man's mixing up of his own rations.

For, in arriving at the price it thought the dairyman ought to get for his milk, the Commission based its calculations on home-mixed rations in which Corn Gluten Feed was a principal basic ingredient.

Those Extra Eggs

The more MASH a hen will eat, the more eggs she will lay. The MASH feed furnishes the egg-making material. It must be rich in protein and this result is obtained by using high grade meat scraps, high grade fish scraps and dried milk albumen. The white of an egg contains 12.6 per cent albumen and over 85 per cent water.

Milk albumen has three and one-half times the nourishing value as the white of an egg itself, which it goes to make. Its importance as a food is emphasized when you consider that besides the albuminoid protein, milk albumen also contains about 7 per cent fat, 23 per cent salts and other mineral matter, important constituents of blood, bone and shell.

WIRTHMORE MASH is guaranteed to contain 20 per cent protein. Keep it before them all the time in self-feeding hoppers. Don't fail to get those extra eggs.

WIRTHMORE MASH is both palatable and economical. Always use WIRTHMORE SCRATCH with WIRTHMORE MASH for greater egg production.

Memories of Our "M" Books, or Ode to "Happy Thots"

How oft we met thee in our college days,
As we with pen in hand,
Wrote first upon the page, our name, our class,
Our date of birth, and then,
With puzzled frown upon the face, we paused
And sat dumfounded, for,
Upon our gaze, fell thee, Oh "Happy Thot."

Entering the World Electrical

THE graduate of today enters a world electrical.

Gathered from the distant waterfalls or generated by the steam turbine, electric power is transmitted to the busiest city or the smallest country place.

Through the co-ordination of inventive genius with engineering and manufacturing resources, the General Electric Company has fostered and developed to a high state of perfection these and numerous other applications.

And so electricity, scarcely older than the graduate of today, appears in a practical, well developed service on every hand.

Recognize its power, study its applications to your life's work, and utilize it to the utmost for the benefit of all mankind.

Anonymous Lines on Choosing a College

Oh sing a song of college days,
I'll tell you where to go,
Johns Hopkins for your knowledge,
Cornell to learn to row;
Fair Harvard for your millionaires,
Old Aggie for your men;
To Amherst for your hightoned bums,
For preachers Wesleyan.

Please,

Don't send my boy to Hopkins
The dying mother said;
Don't send my boy to Harvard
I'd rather he were dead;
But send him to Mass. Aggie,
"Twere better than Cornell;
Rather than send him to Amherst
I'd see my boy in——.

(Ladies might appropriately say "jail")

HEETS

Consumed by Fire 11.01 P. M., May 22, 1919

A cruel, cruel world, it was indeed, as we gathered to see our only change of clothes go up in fire and smoke on that fateful evening last spring. It is said by some that certain members of our beloved family lost several weeks' washing for the family. In view of such circumstances we may well take our losses less bitterly. Indeed, we may well rejoice over the fact that the new laundry guarantees to mangle our clothes better than ever.

I DON'T

My parents forbade me to smoke,
I don't.

Nor listen to a naughty joke,
I don't.

They made it clear I must not wink
At pretty girls, nor even think
About intoxicating drink,
I don't.

To dance or flirt is very wrong,
I don't.

Wild youth chase women, wine and song,
I don't.

I kiss no girls—not even one;
I do not know how it is done,
You wouldn't think I have much fun,
I don't.
